

Stephen Harper doesn't understand climate change

OTTAWA CITIZEN

November 26, 2007

“He has transformed Canada into a spoiler in the global effort to design a sequel to Kyoto that will accelerate, not derail, the fight against climate catastrophe.”

- Susan Riley, columnist

“Harper doesn't understand how serious voters in Canada and elsewhere are about wanting to fight global warming.”

- Editorial

If the Harper Conservatives understand climate change, why don't they do something about it?

The Liberal Party has a plan to battle climate change

Stéphane Dion has a blueprint for putting Canada's large industrial emitters on a 'carbon budget' that will help Canada honour its Kyoto commitment and trigger a significant reinvestment in job-rich green technologies.

A greener economy means a richer country for us all.

Liberals are working for a Canada we can all look forward to.
